A Priest Sent to Prison.
At Montano, Italy, a trial ended in the sentence of a priest to 20 years' penal servitude for the murder of a young woman of that place. The victim, Nicoletta Cito by name, was married, and her husband had gone to America to gain his fortune. Meanwhile the young grass widow was overwhelmed with attentions from would-be lovers, attracted by her beauty. She was evidently only annoyed by these attentions, and led a life of severe piety, attending church at every opportunity, in order, it was said, to discourage all the more the unwelcome attentions of her ardent admirers.

Unfortunately, however, her beauty had a baneful effect upon the priest, young Father Delucca, with whom Nicoletta's visits to the church brought her into frequent companionship. Delucca soon fell madly in love with the young woman, who seemed to have flirted heartlessly with him, for the purpose, apparently, of the better concealing the fact that she had at last yielded to the importunities of a suitor who had succeeded where so many others had failed in winning her heart away from her husband. Delucca in course of time, discovered the deception which had been practiced upon him, and at the same time became aware of the fickle woman's sinful liaison. Furious with jealous rage, he traced the lovers to their trying place where he surprised them and attacked them with a bludgeon. The man tried to escape alive, after a severe beating, but Nicoletta received such serious injuries that she died two days afterward, having in the meantime denounced the priest as her murderer.

The trial which has just ended was the occasion of great excitement among the people of all the country round, and the sentence of the accused to a long term of imprisonment was received with cheers from the crowd in the court room. The fact that a still more severe sentence was not pronounced is due to the provocation which the woman had given the murderer, and to the circumstance that he was a priest, there being a very strong sentiment against the extreme penalty being inflicted upon one who has worn the sacred cloth.

Two Royal Betrothals.—The betrothal of the two elder daughters of the Duke of Edinburgh, the second son of Queen Victoria, the Princesses Marie and Victoria Melita, is announced, Princess Marie will wed the Crown Prince Ferdinand of Roumania, while Princess Melita will become the bride of Duke Ernest, the son of the late Duke of Schleswig-Holstein. The Duke is a brother of the Empress of Germany. The two Princesses are the oldest of the four daughters of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the latter being the eldest daughter of the Czar. Princess Marie Alexandra Victoria was born on October 29, 1875, and Princess Victoria Melita on November 25, 1876. They are not at all handsome girls, unless they have developed beauty during the last four years. They bear in features a strong resemblance to their mother. Of the bridegrooms, Duke Ernest, Grand Duke of Schleswig-Holstein is the head of the Holstein-Sonderburg line and the elder brother of the Empress of Germany. One of his sisters, Princess Louise, was married in 1889 to Prince Frederick Leopold of Berlin.

A Mammoth Aerolite.—What is believed to be the largest aerolite ever known to have fallen is lying in the Caspian Sea, a short distance from the peninsula of Apscheron. In falling the aerolite made a most terrific noise as it rushed through the air with incredible speed, and the white hot mass made a light that illumined the country and sea around for a great distance. When it struck the water immense clouds of steam arose, and the hissing could be heard for a great distance. Huge masses of water were thrown upward, and the sight was a beautiful one. So enormous is the aerolite that it projects twelve feet above the water, and save for its fused black crust, which gives it the appearance of having been vanished, it has every appearance of being one of the usual rocky formations met with along the coast. Scientists are deeply interested in the phenomenon, and a number of them are making preparations to visit the peninsula to examine the aerolite.

The Squirrels Were in It.—A good story is told on a Fredericksburg gentleman who attended the unveiling of the Hill monument at Richmond. Being a little worried he sat down on one of the benches in the Capitol park. Previously he had bought a bag of peanuts, which he put in his pocket. In a short time he fell asleep. The many passers-by were attracted by the novel sight of dozens of squirrels that had been attracted by the smell of the nuts diving in and out of his pockets, sitting on his shoulders and knees quietly cracking and eating the nuts.
